Description

Currently, morpho's identifier and local file name are associated tightly. However, the new morpho should support multiple formats (DOI, UUID, etc). Those new identifier may contain some illegal charater for a file name. So it is impossible to use the identifier as the file name directly. We need a new mechanism to generate the file name. Also we need a mechanism to map the identifier and the file name.

Currently, morpho's identifiers look like john.122.1 and john.123.2. They conflict easily. We can use the the MN.generateIdentifier and CN.reserveIdentifier to get the unique id if morpho connects to the network. However,We need a new mechanism to generate a unique id for the morpho if it is offline.
