When we look here: http://mercury-ops2.ornl.gov/clearinghouse/mn/v1/node we see:

The USGS Clearinghouse service has been discontinued. Please consider searching the USGS Science Data Catalog http://data.usgs.gov, Dept. of the Interior http://data.doi.gov/, and Data.gov http://www.data.gov/ for federal data/metadata.

For metadata from former non-federal Clearinghouse partners, please visit those agencies' websites.

Thank you for your patronage!

We can still get to the data, since it is available as a URL within the metadata for a given data package.

Follow-up to previous note: meeting 3/3/15 where it was decided to delete all content from the CSAS MN and delete the MN. The content here has not been replicated to another MN, and some of its content will be available on the new SDC (Science Data Catalog) MN, currently in testing. Some of the content on CSAS (from the National Park Service) will not be available.

Next steps:
- verify solution (decision from meeting was to delete content/MN; after further evaluation we're not sure if this is the most appropriate solution in this case)

The USGS Core Sciences Clearinghouse has closed up shop, and the CSAS MN tied to it needs to be deprecated. See the epad https://epad.dataone.org/pad/p/USGS_CSAS_and_SDC for discussions about how best to close the CSAS MN. The final decision is to:

• First, ARCHIVE all CSAS content so that it is undiscoverable.
• Second, if desired, change the ACCESS POLICY on each object so that it is non-public, so that in the very slight chance that someone has an identifier, if they should try to resolve it, they'd get a "not authorized" message. This is up to Mike/Ranjeet as the CSAS MN owner.
• Lastly, UNAPPROVE the CSAS MN in production so that it does not show up on lists (such as the list of MNs in search, the dashboard, etc.)

#18 - 2016-03-21 15:20 - Laura Moyers

- Status changed from Operational to Closed

The CSAS MN in production has been deprecated. Content was archived, the MN was un-approved, and it was removed from the MN dashboard.
